FRAXINUS GRIFFITHII

Flowering Ash

- This species from south-east Asia is one of the few tropical trees in the genus.
- It has mottled green and cream bark and pinnate leaves with 5-7 leaflets which are green above and silvery below.
- The small fragrant flowers with 4 white petals are borne in erect panicles on the outside of the leaves.
- These are followed by clusters of small, winged fruit to about 4 cm long.
- These fruits often have a pink tinge when mature. Flowering February to March.
