

Family owned and operated since 1976

ALFALA

Medicago Sativa

- Alfalfa is very important used as a fodder crop
- This variety is also used for its rich nutrients, including protein, minerals and vitamins
- Alfalfa is grown on its own
- Leaves can be eaten raw or cooked as a vegetable
- Seeds are sprouted for use in salads
- Alfalfa prefers a hardy, light, well drained to dry soil in sun
- Seed is sown in autumn or spring

Approximately 2,700 seeds per gram